

Mrs. Odilatu holds an undergraduate degree in History from Abia State University, Nigeria and a master's degree in Rehabilitation Counseling from Coppin State University.

Mrs. Odilatu served as the initial program coordinator for the undergraduate program in Rehabilitation Services at Coppin State University when it started in 2006. Currently she teaches undergraduate courses in the Rehabilitation Services Program. She is passionate about students' retention and has utilized every opportunity to encourage and motivate students to stay "focused until it is finished".

Emily is an advocate and through her membership in several faith-based organizations, has traveled extensively, worked hard to raise funds and create visibility for victims of war and HIV/AIDS as well as those working directly among them in several African countries including Uganda, Benin Republic, Sudan, Togo, and Nigeria.
