

Ms. JP Gray is a Native of Washington, DC and received her formal education in the District of Columbia Catholic School System. Ms. Gray received her Bachelor of Science Degree in Psychology in 1996 from Coppin State College. Ms. Gray received her Masters of Science Degree from Coppin State College and the University of Baltimore Schools of Liberal Arts in a collaborative program of Human Services Administration with a concentration in Drug Rehabilitation.

Presently, Ms. Gray is Adjunct Faculty Member at Coppin State University. She instructs students in Psychological Report Writing, Psychological Research, Applied Psychology, Child Psychology, Development Psychology, Experimental Psychology, Personality Psychology and Research Statistics. Ms. Gray is co-advisor for the Psychology Club and PSI CHI Honors Society. As a consultant Ms. Gray is the Assistant Program Manager for a Therapeutic Foster Care Program with the Psychiatric Center Charter in Washington, DC. Ms. Gray started her own company “JP Gray & Associates, Incorporation”, in April 2005. As President and CEO she conducted Parenting classes, life skill class, and anger management classes. Prior to coming to this position, Ms. Gray was a Consultant with the Institute for Behavior Change & Research, in Washington, D.C where she conducted Effective Black Parenting Classes to women in a Methadone Treatment Program, Life Skills Classes, Family Support Network Parenting Program and also conducted drug assessments to clients. Ms. Gray has been a Mental Health Coordinator, Addiction Counselor, Service Coordinator and Program Director. Ms. Gray served in the United States Army from 1975-1986, with various duty assignments and she received an Honorable Discharge.

While attending Coppin State College Ms. Gary was a very active student. She was President of the Psychology Club 95-97, inducted in to PSI CHI “Psychology Honors Society” in 97, and created as well as directed “Saturday Morning Jams” a program based on Erikson’s Theory Identity Vs Role Confusion. Ms. Gray is also a member of the National Honors Society and received awards from Governor Glendenning and Former Mayor Schmoke for her dedication and service to the community. In 2008 Ms. Gray received the Mayoral citation from Mayor James Walls of District Heights, MD for her presentation at Oxford University 20th Annual Roundtable. Her topic was “The Practical Application of Combined Therapies and Understanding Adolescent Outpatient Substance Abuse Treatment”.